Aunouncements of Plans for Important Developments in the South. Many Other New Industries Are Projected.

BALTIMORE, May 25 -Special .- Indica tions in the United States and abroad are that the position of the iron industry to the near future is to be largely a quesaturally in the Southern field, where south of the raw material is yet to be de-eloped. At Birmingham the market dur ng the past week was strengthened, emand was pretty general, and all ne markets cared to take was but at advanced prices. The character of respondent of the Manufacturers' Record writes that "it must be remembered that what we call now a good demand is relative. What under ordinary circumstances when furnace yards carry good stocks, was called but an ordinary demand, counts now as a good demand when furnace yards are tared. There is still no accumulation in furnace yards and none in warrant yards. In the latter shipments continue as fast as the cars are supplied for loading. It is a slow process, but a continuous one, and is constantly cast, because the furnaces are now preity well sold up for 1899. As yet there are no sales for 1990 reported. Three fur-nace interests are more or less in the position of having sold their anticipated output for 1899, as close up as sound busicourse, direct their attention to supplying the wants first, of their own properties before going on the general market.
